Le scienze del cervello ci sorprendono ogni giorno con straordinarie scoperte, mettendo in discussione numerose idee correnti. Le nostre scelte morali sembrano non essere del tutto figlie di riflessioni e di ragioni; le nostre credenze sono influenzate non solo dalla cultura, ma anche - ci piaccia o no - dall'architettura della nostra mente, su cui non abbiamo alcun controllo. La nostra stessa autocoscienza e il concetto di persona vacillano sotto i colpi della ricerca sulle basi cerebrali della vita mentale. In questo volume, alcuni fra i maggiori esperti italiani della materia fanno il punto su una nuova disciplina, la neuroetica, chiamata a fare i conti con le acquisizioni delle neuroscienze e le loro ricadute sulla cultura e la vita pratica.
